The State Inspector and Examiner is objecting to state officials using state automobiles for personal purposes. If the state will hurry up its highway work so that some of the rest of us can use them for personal uses, the officials have our permission to use the automobiles all they want to.

HEARD ABOUT TOWN

Col. Bob Walker, the famous auctioneer, sold at auction Saturday the nice residence on Fifth street belonging to Miss Pauline Smith, that was advertised in the Daily Register. Mr. Dave Biggerstaff bought the property at $4,010, and it was considered a bargain at that price. Col. Walker kept things moving at the sale in his usual hustling style.

MOTHERS WHO WORRY SHOULD READ THIS LETTER

It Proves That Vinol Will Build Up Frail, Ailing Children
Mrs. L. Andrews, Bainbridge, N. Y., says: "My little daughter was run down, tired all the time, pale, thin and nervous, and had headaches so we had to take her out of school. Vinol has built her up, she has a good appetite, no more headaches, her color is good and she has returned to school."

Vinol owes its success in such cases to the tissue-building, extractives of fresh cods' liver, without oil, aided by the blood and strength-creating elements of tonic iron, beef peptone and glycerophosphates which it contains.

Thus in a natural manner it creates a healthy appetite, aids digestion, makes rich, red blood and the result is a good healthy color, strength and vitality.

CONGRESSWOMAN WILL NOT SPEAK

Oklahoma's Chief Cafeteria Owner, She Campaigns By Eating Soup With Voters

(New York World)
Muskogee, Okla.—Miss Alice M. Robertson, republican, and elected by this state as the only woman representative in Congress, takes her victory complacently. "They elected me, as I knew they would," she says, "and I am going to Congress. That pleases me. I shall make no speeches in Congress. My actions will be recorded in votes and not in words. But the country will know that I am in Congress."

The new Congresswoman has made only one decision thus far since her election. She will hire a man as secretary. "It's a man's job," she says.

A fighter since she came to Oklahoma sixty years ago, trudging behind her grandfather's pair of oxen, Miss Robertson conducted her campaign upon the theory that "the way to a man's vote is through his stomach."

They call her "Miss Alice," throughout the state, but she with visions of a stalwart young advocate of woman's rights will have their ideas upset at sight of her. She is 65, stout and jolly, with a smile that rivals T. R.'s, whose personal friend she was for years, and who made her postmaster of Muskogee in 1905.

For years she was a violent anti-suffragist and an official in the State League Opposed to Woman Suffrage. When the suffrage amendment became a law, Miss Alice remarked: "Well, they've given us the vote; we'll see if the men mean it."

And a few days later she announced her candidacy for Congress. Now, Miss Alice knew her limitations. She knew she couldn't win by taking the stump. She didn't think a letter campaign would do the trick. As a matter of fact she didn't make a speech or write a letter of solicitation during the campaign. She chose another method.

Miss Alice is the successful owner of the state's largest cafeteria. She runs a daily advertisement in the newspapers, a chatty intimate ad. She seized upon this method of reaching the voters. She combined news in her table delicacies with Biblical quotations and political arguments.

But Miss Alice had an even more efficient intensive campaign. At dinner time in the cafeteria she made the rounds of the tables where the other occupants were of doubtful political affiliation, or where, on rare occasions, there was a stranger. She brought to the table a bowl of soup, and consumed it while talking politics. She has a record of 17 bowls of soup at one dinner hour.

But even with this method, and the ads which came to be one of the biggest features of the local newspapers, it was agreed that Miss Alice had no chance of election. Miss Alice herself expressed it quite neatly after the election, when she said: "They voted for me, and they bet against me."

Pure, Rich Blood Will Keep Your Body Vigorous and Healthy

When impurities creep into your blood the first symptoms are usually a loss of appetite, followed by a gradual lessening of energy, the system becomes weaker day by day, until you feel yourself on the verge of a breakdown.

Nearly everybody needs a few bottles of S. S. S., the great vegetable blood remedy, to cleanse out all impurities about twice a year. It is an excellent idea to take this precaution to keep the system in a vigorous condition so as to more easily resist disease to which every one is subject. S. S. S. is without an equal as a general tonic and system builder. It improves the appetite and gives new strength and vitality to both old and young.
